Saturday, September Nineteenth

Hostess, MRS. T. J. WEAKLEY

How have you spent the Summer?

The summer's long sweet, happy dream is o'er
And mellow Autumn paints the woodland red,
And from our restfulness we wake refreshed,
Prepared to grasp anew life's mystic thread.

Janus am I; the oldest of potentates;
Forward I look and backward, and below
I count—as god of avenues and gates,—
The years that through my portals come and go.

The tomb is not an endless night,
It is a thoroughfare—a way
That closes in a soft twilight
And opens on eternal day.
